STATE PLANS RELIEF EXPEDITION

SAN DIEGO MAN ON AMUNDSEN RELIEF JOURNEY

California Banker to Head Searching Party if Missing Explorer Does not Appear

Veteran Arctic Explorer Believes Polar Flight Party Is Safe, But Abandoned Planes

(By Universal Service)

SAN DIEGO, May 25. Arrangements were completed here today for the financing of an expedition to go to the relief of Roald Amundsen lost somewhere upon the vast ice cap crowning the top of the world.

Hans Hansen, San Diego banker, member of the famous family of explorers of that name and related also to Mrs. A. P. Spreckels, widow of the San Francisco sugar magnate, declared he has made full plans for raising from $25,000 to $50,000 to outfit the expedition, but is holding up execution for another day in the hope that the lost explorer will be heard from.

"I have been in communication with Haakon H. Hammer, former associate of Amundsen, who is now in Los Angeles," Hansen said.

"On Hammer's advice, I shall wait until tomorrow afternoon, possibly Wednesday morning, before actually organizing the expedition."

NOT IN GRAVE DANGER

"It seems reasonable to suppose that the lost explorers are not in grave danger. They have long experience in the frozen north and left Spitsbergen with supplies sufficient to sustain them for over a month. Then, too, though misfortune may have overtaken one of the airplanes, it is unlikely that the second also came to grief at the same time."

"However, should no news come from the missing men very shortly, I shall at once set aside a relief fund, for which I already have arranged, and move as rapidly as possible towards sending an expedition along the route taken by Amundsen."

Mr. Hansen has wired Admiral Moffett, chief of the naval air service requesting the services of Lieutenant Ralph Davison, an experienced North flier now on duty with the aircraft carrier Langley in Hawaiian waters. A suitable plane could be obtained somewhere in Northern Europe, Mr. Hansen has been advised.

HOTEL GROUPS NOW COMPLETE

The organization of 153 men who will carry on the campaign for Richmond's new hotel next week is practically completed lacking only a few men in the entire organization. Nine of the twelve groups are 100% complete. The three groups that filled their quota yesterday were: Group 2—J. A. Miller, manager, O. J. Ripley, Tony Papadakis, A. C. Paris, John Rihm, H. J. Hennessey, W. A. Potter, Roy Wells, R. H. Cunningham and A. C. Lang.

Group 8—L. Eakle, manager, J. B. Maxwell, Carlis Bellegarde, S. B. Robertson, K. J. Henning, Dan Cox, R. J. Ralph, F. A. Mero, Geo. Schafer and H. B. Selvey.

Group 10, Harry Curry, manager, T. D. Morgan, A. Bellegarde, A. J. Ruel, Rev. R. G. Poole, L. J. Shaw, W. A. Hislop, A. H. Winchell, H. H. Turley and J. B. Redding.

Divisions C and D—Fred LaMoine and Harry Marcus, managers respectively, were the first two divisions to be completely signed up.

The executive committee is meeting daily at the Den O'Sweat's for report on their preliminary work. No report as to the progress made has been announced. The men of the committee have given a large part of their time last week and will do so this week to the preliminary work of the campaign that the stock sales may have a good start.

"Richmond has grown from nothing to a great industrial city in twenty years," according to E. M. Tilden, prominent citizen and member of the Community Hotel executive committee, "and the same causes which have contributed to its rapid growth in the past will make our city a great industrial and commercial center in the coming years. I have seen Richmond when it was only a cluster of houses. Now in the space of a few years it has become a city with great industrial payroll and a great shipping.

"Our Chamber of Commerce has proven the worth of cooperation and the citizens of this community have united to provide Richmond with a much-needed hotel."

"If Richmond is to keep pace with other growing communities it must provide proper accommodations for the visitors who come here; it must provide a place of meeting where our service clubs, social affairs and business conferences may be entertained; it must provide a place that will properly impress the prospective investor or home-seeker that Richmond is a modern, progressive city and that we have here every advantage offered by progressive cities elsewhere."

"The securing of Richmond's Community Hotel will mark a new era, an era of accomplishment, when the value of co-operation will be realized. Let everyone pull for Richmond and the New Community Hotel."

Roosevelt High School Teaches Plan Vacations

With the summer vacation fast approaching, the question uppermost in many minds is "Where Shall I spend my vacation?" Teachers, having no encumbrances to bother with, make up their minds early. Most of the teachers of Roosevelt Junior High school have already made plans for their summer trips, as follows:

Mrs. Robinson is going to visit Blue Lakes for two weeks this summer.

Miss McLaughlin will return to her home in Jackson for the vacation.

Miss Galbraith intends to spend the entire vacation in the mountains.

Mrs. Head will also visit Blue Lakes, Lake County.

Mrs. Baker expects to visit her home in Galena, Kansas.

Miss Skinner will spend her vacation going to summer school.

Oregon seems to be a popular place for the teachers this summer and Miss Broadwell, Miss De Lap, Miss Donahue, Miss MacPherson and Miss Engle intend to spend their vacations in this state.

Yosemite is another of those places where everyone desires to spend the summer months. Miss Brooks, Miss Bass and Miss Lutz will visit Yosemite and Lake Tahoe, California. Miss De Lap, Miss Donahue, Miss MacPherson and Miss Engle intend to spend their vacations in this state.

An Amsterdam Island dispatch says that the captain of the transport Farm, one of the navy boats with the expedition, observed open water to the north of that island where he believed the navigators might descend.

Miss Frank will spend her vacation in Los Angeles.

Miss Morehouse will spend a few days in Lake County and then go to summer school.

Miss M. Robinson is to attend the teachers' convention in Indianapolis.

DREDGING BIDS HELD TOO HIGH, ARE REJECTED

City Engineer and Attorney Directed to Draw New Plans Conforming to Bids Offered

MANY OBJECTIONS ARE MADE

Chief Complaint of Bidders Are Against Employing Americans And Richmond Men

Only two bids for dredging for the site of Municipal Wharf No. 2 on the Richmond inner harbor, were received by the city council last night, and both were rejected on the ground that they were in excess of the $22,000 which the city has available for this work. City Engineer Holloman and City Attorney D. J. Hall were ordered to redraft the plans and specifications for the dredging, along the lines used by the federal government, and have them ready to call for new bids next Monday night.

The bids received were from the American Dredging Company, 30 cents per cubic yard for the 100,000 cubic yards, with certain exceptions taken to clauses in the specifications; and the San Francisco Bridge Company, 60 cents per cubic yard, with an alternative bid of 26 cents if certain clauses are eliminated.

It is the purpose of the redrafting order to have the clauses objected to eliminated. They were as follows:

AMUNDSEN'S FORMER FEAT

(By Universal Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—Roald Amundsen endeared himself in the hearts of the citizens of this city when he arrived here October 21, 1906, after completing the most wonderful of his early exploits, navigation of the Northwest Passage from Norway to the Pacific Coast of North America in the Gjoa, a sailing vessel.

With three Norwegians for crew, Amundsen left Hardanger in Northern Norway on June 16, 1903 and after drifting through the ice for more than three years, came into San Francisco bay on October 21, 1906.

He was given an enthusiastic reception and in appreciation of this, made a present to the city of the Gjoa. The craft now occupies an honored spot in Golden Gate Park across the highway from the ocean beach.

The Gjoa is 70 feet long with a beam of 20 feet and is of 47 tons registry. The vessel was built in 1872 and was named for the wife of the builder.

WHALE ADDS HAZARD.

LONDON, May 25.—"Captain Amundsen is a man who can get over even the most difficult obstacles," declared Dr. Fritjof Glansen, famous Arctic explorer, at Copenhagen today, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from there.

Spitzenberg messages to the Norwegian Handelsstidende say that members of the expedition are a bit down-hearted on account of Amundsen's continued absence and silence. The weather is cloudy and the temperature below zero.

An Amsterdam Island dispatch says that the captain of the transport Farm, one of the navy boats with the expedition, observed open water to the north of that island where he believed the navigators might descend.

FIVE STOLEN AUTOS FOUND IN EL CERRITO

Five stolen automobiles were found in El Cerrito over Saturday and Sunday by city marshal Forrest Wright and constable George Conlon.

No parts or tires were taken off the machines found, most of which belonged to Oakland people. It is the opinion of the officials that the autos were just used for a joy ride.

BABY'S FUNERAL HELD

Elise Natalia Marken, one-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Marken, El Cerrito, was laid to rest in Sunset View cemetery yesterday afternoon, after services conducted at the family home under the charge of Bert Curry.

Petitions for the installation of a fire hydrant at Venture and Esmond avenues was referred to the light committee of the city council for one week last night.

Application of P. M. Sanford for permission to construct a $25,000 garage at the corner of Bissell avenue and Tenth street was granted by the city council last night, and rezoning of the corner to permit the construction was ordered.

It was stipulated that the entrance should be on Bissell avenue to comply with objections from the school board and that windows without openings should be installed on the Tenth street side to prevent noises from penetrating the school. Some objections to this plan were made by M. S. Sterns, adjacent property owner, after the permit had been granted and were too late for any action to be taken.

Changes in the zoning ordinance to permit the opening of garages and service stations, oil stations and undertaking parlors on application to the city council, without a re-zoning order, was ordered.

Petitions for rezoning lots 7 and 8 block 1, Traffic Center tract on San Pablo avenue north of Richmond, to permit the erection of a transformer house by the Western States Gas and Electric Company, was referred to the planning committee for one week.

Application of I. E. Pimm to construct a garage on Terrace avenue between Washington and Tunnel avenues by special permit was granted. It was stated by E. E. Grow, building inspector, that the building was already almost entirely completed but (Continued on Page 5)

Merchants Boost Community Hotel, Arrange to Form An Incorporation

The Richmond Merchants Association held its semi-monthly meeting last night at Saint Edmunds Guild 10th Street and Barret Avenue.

It was decided at last night's meeting to close all stores all day Saturday, May 30th, Memorial day.

T. H. LeDap, local attorney, was the first speaker of the evening. His talk was about the advantages of incorporation, it being the intention of the merchants to incorporate. LeDap will be retained as attorney for the association.

L. D. Barr, western representative, for the Hockenbury system which is promoting the community hotel project here, was the next speaker.

Barr told of the advantages to be gained by Richmond having a modern hotel. He showed conclusively that the community hotel would be a paying investment and would bring good returns to every investor.

Barr was enthusiastic about the men chosen as the committee in charge. He spoke of them as hard-headed business men that had made a success of business in Richmond and these men had invested heavily in the hotel project. Barr's talk was interesting and instructive.

Henry Johnson, president of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, was the last speaker of the evening.

Johnson urged every merchant to give his entire support to the hotel project. He pointed out the necessity of a community hotel in Richmond, Johnson said in part.

"The bath house will soon be completed, the ferry system is here and operating within a year or two the bridge will be built across the Carquinez Straits and what would Richmond look like to the outsider if we did not have a community hotel?"

The association adopted the slogan: Boost for the Community hotel.

What Richmond builds—Builds Richmond.

Thomas Pringle Funeral Today

Funeral services for Thomas Pringle, 79 years old resident of Richmond Annex, who passed away while on the way to church Sunday morning will be held from St. Ambrose Catholic church in Berkeley at 10 o'clock this morning. The cortège will leave the St. Curry Chapel in Richmond at 9:30, and after the services at the church, interment will be held in St. Mary's cemetery, Oakland.

Decedent who was a native of Ireland, and had resided with his daughter, Mrs. Teresa Harkins in Richmond Annex for the past two years. He had been in poor health for some time.

But for this girl after confessing the crime, not once, but many times and to many persons, to suddenly come in with a last-minute attempt to fasten the crime on an innocent man is ridiculous. This office will brook no such trifling in a case as serious as this."

BRADY ADMITS MAN EXISTS

Claims Dorothy Ellingson Adds Perjury to Murder by Accusing Innocent Man

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Jimmie La Marr actually exists.

This was admitted yesterday by District Attorney Matthew Brady, as defense and prosecution in the Ellingson murder case dispatched secret agents on a grim search through the underworld for the man whom Dorothy McGovern, chief counsel for Dorothy, wants him to support her eleventh-hour alibi.

Assistant District Attorney Harmon D. Skillin, prosecutor, would use him in rebuttal. He believes that La Marr, if found, would refute Dorothy's story by the simple expedient of proving that he was not even in San Francisco when the crime occurred.

PREVIOUS MASTODONS AND ROADS

An interesting article in World's Work for March, written by Frederick Alan Thompson, starts with mastodons in the prehistoric era as the basis of an article on modern road construction. Strangely this comparison may seem, the mastodon stuck in a pool of asphalt and preserved for thousands of years and the application of this water-tight everlasting material as a road covering, have much in common.

Mr. Thompson says, "Through the ages  this seemingly deathless material has had many practical uses. Now it affords luxurious pavements on 90 percent of the famous thoroughfares of the world. Appius Claudius made the Appian Way a great causeway of layers of stone three feet thick, because he didn't know what a canny Scotch engineer named Macadam found out eighteen centuries later.

"Macadam's theory was simplicity itself. He said that no matter of what structure you made a pavement, the earth must in the last analysis hold it up, and that the earth, dry and compacted, would ordinarily sustain any reasonable load; therefore only a shell, if water-tight, was needed over the dry earth. He found that rock dust between angular broken stones, would, when set, form a mortar and thus cement the stones into a waterproof shell—and so the Roman three-foot road became a macadam six-inch road. But alas, for all his brains, the Scotchman had not foreseen the coming of the automobile which, in passing, sucked up the precious rock dust and deftly sprayed it over gardens and fresh laundered curtains. Right here, asphalt came to the rescue. The grim tenacity of the clutch which held the mastodon as though he were a fly, bound tightly together the stones against rending by the juggernauts of the road, and at the same time, shed water like a duck's back.

"Water is a tireless, resourceful, cunning enemy of roads; if a pavement is not waterproof, water penetrates it and softens the underlying earth. Asphalt is so flexible and resilient that the severe stresses set up by nature have no effect on its stability. This flexibility also allows the pavement to maintain contact with the underlying earth with its tremendous supporting power. A rigid material would be forced to bridge every shrinkage of earth foundation or break under the load."

Many states have taken advantage of the lesson taught by the mastodon stuck in the asphalt. They have used thousands of miles of well-packed old gravel and macadam highways and streets as the base for a waterproof covering of asphalt mixed with crushed rock and rolled down under pressure. Such roads and streets have been in use many years. They were built at a minimum expense and have given a maximum of service and taxpayers have been saved millions of dollars.

SOCIALISM THAT WORKS

Under the caption, "Socialism and How It Works Today in America," the San Francisco Chronicle says:

"Socialism and its more radical brother, communism, in its imaginings has never contemplated the distribution of wealth in the manner and by the means by which it is now being distributed. There is now among us an era of distribution of wealth by dividing and selling vast corporations in small pieces to the man on the street, the wage earner and the house maid.

The great railroad systems of this country, the public service corporations and street railroads, and even great oil corporations today have their hundreds of thousands of small stockholders who have obtained, through husbanding their frugal savings, their portion of the wealth of this country. This far seeing and far-reaching movement, this distribution of the $25 share of stock and the $100 bond, is the conservative's answer to the socialist.

"This distribution of wealth is the true socialistic paradise. Each day this millennium of wealth distribution is being more nearly perfected, and every home owner, every stock owner, and every bond owner, as the numbers increase, answer the socialistic problem of the division of wealth with unanswerable argument.

"This is why today America is fundamentally sound. This is why, with approaching years, men may look forward with satisfaction and contentment to the prospect that this country, the home of their children for generations to come, will provide a sanctuary of safety for all times. Such assurances for the future make the vista of coming years for American citizenship one to contemplate with satisfaction."

FOR PRACTICAL STUDY OF WORLD PROBLEMS

In a note accompanying an anonymous gift of $500 toward the endowment fund of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations to be established at John Hopkins University, the donor said:

The Page School is conducting a nation wide appeal for $1, of Owen D. Young, to provide the initial endowment for establishment of the School at the Johns Hopkins University. Headquarters of the movement are 111 Broadway, New York.

Hats and Frocks Show Feathers Where Flowers Once Bloomed

No sooner have we thoroughly learned the lessons that flowers are in fashion, and been assured that trinkets, which are put to no special artificial flowers were never more inconveniences to yield that pulchritude than we get word from Paris that cock is on his way to the butcher. One of the few things that can be asserted about the fashions is that feathers are replacing flowers. Real feathers, of various sorts to trim frocks in place of flowers. It is the old story of too great popularity. Everybody began to wear artificial flowers to trim afternoon and evening frock, so somebody began to use feathers instead. Often a bunch of attractive feathers will be used at the shoulders or the hip in precisely the manner that one would use flowers. Again they form fringe or the edging of a tunic or drapery.

Especially is it true that the smartest dressmakers are using feathers of various sorts to trim frocks in place of flowers. It is the old story of too great popularity. Everybody began to wear artificial flowers to trim afternoon and evening frock, so somebody began to use feathers instead. Often a bunch of attractive feathers will be used at the shoulders or the hip in precisely the manner that one would use flowers. Again they form fringe or the edging of a tunic or drapery. Duck plumage is quite smart in Paris, and the breast of the duck lived in interesting color is used to form collar or cuffs in lieu of fur. Very smart in Paris at the present time are hats of black and white trimmed with gracefully curling duck feathers. And this despite the fact that "everyone" is wearing the flower-trimmed hats.

WHAT YOUR FANCY DRESS SHOWS

Did it ever occur to you that a splendid way to read the real natures of your friends and associates is at a fancy dress party or masquerade? The suggestion was made recently that the dress that one chooses for a party of this sort, though chosen primarily as a disguise, is very often the expression of some unfulfilled longing or the manifestation of a thwarted side of one's character. Sometimes it is quite funny when you look at it this way. A sleek young bachelor professor will go to great pains to get a really authentic costume for the role of Henry VIII, and for the time

CAKES FOR SUMMER, OF COURSE

Cakes some persons think, are cold-weather deserts. Not pancakes, but just all sorts of layer and drop cakes. They consider this form of sweets a little too filling for warm weather meals.

But cakes, if you choose the right kinds, are really quite one of the most suitable summer day desserts. And if you have a few good cake recipes, you need never be in a quandary as to what sort of dessert to have.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

SALLY LEE leaves her husband Tom sometimes. He is working so hard now more. He is working so hard. It must be awfully nice down there in the snow, though I can't imagine being anywhere without Jack and Linda. We just sit and play with the baby all the time. Don't know how we ever lived without him. I take him out the Park every morning and sit and sun while he sleeps. You can see I am more contented than ever.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXIX—LETTERS FROM HOME

SALLY hurried out of the local felt little gown shop, her face burning with shame. She longer looked at the exquisitely good women about her enviously.

She felt humiliad, degraded, by her brief experience as a fashion model. Mr. Simon's editor's suggestion that he could set some man to buy her beautiful clothes like those she had been wearing rang in her ears. Were all these pretty girls she saw just bait for designing men? Her beautiful world of illusion was in ruins. Was there no beauty to be found in life—to one to be trusted? She stumbled blindly about wishing that there were someone to whom she could turn for comfort. Incoherent sentences formed themselves in her mind, things she wished she had said to him. Detachededly she had said to him, Detachededly she said to him, "I'm a good boy and purched the vacant, cushion wisps of hair under the brain." She almost hated her beauty.

When she reached the hotel and rushed up to her little boudoir suite, it seemed almost like a friend reaching out to her. There was a haven of refuge, something dependable, substantial that she could always rely on. And as though to welcome her, there were three letters awaiting her.

Her fingers trembled as she opened one from Tom, but its short, terse phrases made her eyes close with anger and her breath come fitfully. She could read between the lines and find bitter disappointment, but in his words there was only cool acceptance of the fact that she couldn't stay with him. He didn't tell her how he was getting along and she hoped to know all about him. Had he promoted that this company was sending him to other cities? Had he failed again and changed his job? Sally wished that there were some way that she might know more than he had told her.

She glanced idly at the other letters—one from David Stone, a friendly encouraging note asking her if she were happy, reminding her that she had promised to write and tell him how she was getting on. She tossed it in a drawer and picked up one from Emily.

"What a lot of luck you had!" she began, not even noticing that Sally was indifferently peering away the traces of tears. "Say I saw you off on the Boardwalk all dressed up and I never was so thrilled in my life. Don't suppose you'll be around long when you're a model."

"No, you're all wrong," she retorted, trying to overcome the quaver in her voice. "I'll be around here until they like me. I didn't care for the work."

Emily was a hasty. "You mean you are going to stay here and paint a typewriter when you might have a beautiful clothes and not have to do a thing but look up and down the Boardwalk?"

"I'm added. She wished that she could tell out the whole story to someone, but Emily wouldn't understand.

"Maybe then you'd like to go out with me and a couple of friends. I know, go to the movies and then maybe somewhere to eat." Sally shook her head disconsolately. "No," she said sadly, "I don't want to go to the place I want to go I'm not wanted."

WHERE IT STARTED

DERRICK

The derrick is one of the builders' inventions, and its actual origin is unknown. The origin of the name, however, is clear. Derrick were originally called cranes, from some resemblance to those long-legged, long-necked birds; "Derrick" was applied because it was the name of a famous hangman of the 17th century, who made his own gibbets.

Prof Vaughn has returned from a ten-day visit to Salt Lake City. He belongs to the University Faculty. Orinda is glad to welcome him.

Frank Enos has taken the exclusive agency here for the Equitable Life Insurance Company, and reports most successful results. We do not doubt it, as Mr. Enos is a "Go-Getter."

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have moved into their new home here. They have three children, the two girl twins being of school age will attend the Orinda Union School.

Johnson's Tire Service Pleases

Salesmen for various large tire companies, have been complimenting Lud Johnson on his new tire service house, on Fourteenth street, near Macdonald, into which he has just moved. The salesmen declared that this shop, from points of convenience, equipment and appearance, is the finest in any city of the size of Richmond in California.

Johnson started his business in a little location at Tenth and Macdonald avenue, but his strides toward success have been so great that he found this place much too small to take care of his needs. The new building was built by Johnson himself on property which he owns.

The new shop is very attractive from the exterior, being painted white and blue and has an approach from Fourteenth street capable of accommodating three cars. A plastered office is located in the front of the building, which has a large show window. The vulcanizing shop is in the rear. In addition to the vulcanizing work, Johnson is prepared to dispense a complete line of tires and accessories.

PLAN OF FINANCING:

Sell locally 7% Preferred cumulative stock of the par value of $100.00 per share. Common Stock at no par value, $10.00 per share. The Preferred Stock is preferred both as to dividends and assets. With each share of Preferred stock subscribed for, one share of no par value Common Stock may be purchased for $10.00. The stock is sold in units of one share of Preferred and one share of Common stock for $110.00 per unit.

There is no bonus or promotion stock and all stockholders will invest on exactly the same basis. The number of shares of Common Stock authorized to be issued will be the same as the number of the shares of Preferred Stock sold.

The operating company is the Hamilton Hotel Chain which is at present successfully and profitably operating a chain of hotels in California.

Income from the operation of the hotel first pays operating costs, fixed charges and then the 7% dividend on the preferred stock. The remaining net profits are to be divided, half to the stockholders as declared in dividends on the common stock, the other half to the operating company as its first and only profit. 300 People at P.T.A. Picnic at East Shore Park

It was estimated that 300 attended and enjoyed the Richmond Federated P.T.A. picnic at East Shore park yesterday. Representatives from all over this county, and from Oakland and Alameda Federations were present as guests.

A substantial sum was realized from the sale of hot dogs, rolls, coffee, and ice cream, which were sold during the day at the luncheon which was spread at noon time. Mrs. Kiel, second district Trustee, installed officers of the Richmond federation and several of the local federations for the coming year during the afternoon. Mrs. R. N. Fahrenholz is the new federation president.

Story of Sugar Told to Orinda School Pupils

On the evening of May 22nd, under the auspices of the Orinda P.T.A., D. P. Edwards, of the Hawaiian California Sugar Company, at the Orinda Union School, presented the four reel industrial film of the "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Sugar, from the plowing of the ground to the finish product. It was very instructive, being accompanied by an explanation of each process by Mr. Edwards.

The many children were especially interested, and it demonstrates what wonderful advantages the moving picture will have in education. After the pictures, whilst tables were produced and many score-cards sold, Edward McVey won gentlemen's first prize and Miss Maud Woodin, ladies' first prize. Dancing on the time new floor finished this most enjoyable evening.

"Eternal Struggle" At The Richmond

A brilliant cast including Renee Adoree, Barbara La Marr, Earle Williams, Pat O'Malley, Wallace Beery, Josef Swickard and Pat Harmon, figures brilliantly through Metro's "The Eternal Struggle," the feature attraction at the Richmond Theatre.

"The Eternal Struggle" is literally packed with spectacular thrills, most of which were filmed in far Canada where the story is centered. Aside from the tense drama of "The Eternal Struggle," the production has the marvelous beauty of the frozen north as a natural setting and it is beautifully photographed.

"The Eternal Struggle" is a notable achievement and ranks easily among the great pictures of the screen. It was adapted by J. G. Hawks and Monte M. Katterjohn from the famous novel by G. B. Lancaster, "The Law-Bringers," and was photographed by Percy Hilburn. It is a Reginald Barker production for the Metro-Louis B. Mayer forces.

Other features on the same program include "The Fox Hunt," a Spat Family comedy; "Sportlight," a clever screen sport novelty.

Starting tomorrow, Marion Davies in "Yolanda."

'Goose Hangs High' At The California

The genius of James Cruze shines out in every foot of his new Paramount film, "The Goose Hangs High," which made its local debut yesterday at the California Theatre. Once again, the director of "The Covered Wagon" reveals his astonishing faculty for probing beneath the surface of human lives and bringing out the drama and heartaches.

Along with its many admirable qualities of gripping plot, competent cast and shrewd direction, the picture has the added advantage of being free from the usual improbabilities that are injected into many film plays. It is a study in simplicity and naturalness; it breathes a spirit of realism and humanity.

The story of "The Goose Hangs High" is the story of what is happening to-day in millions of homes, where parents and children look at family life from different points of view.

The Ingalls parents, in the photoplay, struggle to give their children all the educational advantages and luxuries that other boys and girls enjoy, only to come to the bitter realization that their sacrifices have been in vain.

Other features on the same program include "Fares, Please!" an Al St. John comedy; "Alice The Toreador," a clever screen novelty; Larry Caneo, at the organ.

THE STORY THUS FAR

War tragedies had schooled around Leo Brewley and left their mark; she craves excitement such as the English country life did not offer. She decides to have a fling.

Susie nodded.

"He traveled up with us this morning, and I gave him your address. He thought, if you couldn't walk, you might like some drives I promised to ask you and let him know."

Susie threw her match into the grate.

"Then phone him directly you get near one, my good Sir! Tell him to come as soon as possible. And remind him of his promise to let me try his new model. And tell him—" A ring at the front door bell sent Susie, who sat facing the window, to her feet.

"It's Sam! Oh, isn't it sweet of him to fetch me? After attending a meeting, too!"

No greater antithesis to Richard Valryan's vivid moodiness, long graceful limbs, and singular beauty could have been imagined. Perhaps, in the circumstances, the additional attraction Leo found in this man's company today was thus accounted for. He stood outside the fog. He represented the world of material, solid, pleasant things.

During their brief meal together, that part of her nature which responded to those realities found ample satisfaction.

"Without a doubt the game played at First street last night in which the Mercantile Trust aggregation defeated the Santa Fe team 1 to 0, was the best seen this season in the Richmond City Twilight League. A wild pitch in the eighth by Burt cost the Santa Fe the game.

Gomez was up and flew out, Cornell hit a single, Schneider was put out at second, McFarron struck out, and Elwood was at the bag when the wild throw came and Cornell made the only run in this bitter pitcher's battle.

There were only seven little hits in the whole affair-four for Mercantile and 3 for Santa Fe. Gomez was back on the mound for the bankers and pitched a whiz of a game, while except for the wild
